Parents Raise Questions About English Program

BY PAT GRIFFITH

Superintendent of Schools Harris Taylor found out Monday night what turns on the parents of high school students. English -- how well it is used, written, spoken and spelled.

The matter of how much, or how little, students are learning of the English language came up in a question and answer period following a talk by Taylor to a Padre Parents meeting.

One of the first of many written questions submitted to Taylor was: "Has there been a de-emphasis on grammar and English?"

"I think there has been a shift in emphasis," the superintendent replied. "If one means by grammar the diagramming of sentences, then I would say yes. But if one means correct usage of the language, then the answer is no."

Taylor said one way the district can judge the effectiveness of its English program is on the basis of what happens to Carmel High School graduates who attend Monterey Peninsula College.

"Many fewer of our students go into a remedial English class than from other high schools in this area," he stated.

One father said he felt his daughter had received a sound background in English, but a dozen other parents spoke up and said they felt their children were not learning the fundamentals of English.

"I am very unhappy with their speech, spelling and grammar," said one mother. "I have not found that teachers give a good over-view in English. As a former freshman college English teacher, I have not been pleased with what I've seen when I come into the classrooms and see what is being taught. I think we can do better. I think our standards can be higher."

RUN-AROUND

Another mother said that when her child was at Middle School, teachers assured her that grammar would be taught in the ninth grade. In the ninth grade she was told it would come the next year "and then in the tenth grade the teacher said 'you should have learned it already.' All we've gotten is a run-around."

Taylor repeated that he felt Carmel High School students show up well on a comparative basis with students from other schools.

In response to a question about the size of freshman English classes, Taylor said that an additional English teacher was added to the staff this fall to help reduce the heavy class loads. He said there are still some classes with 30 students because teachers were reluctant to break up a class after the semester had begun. The over-all student-teacher ratio at the high school is 23.5 to 1, he said.

Taylor told the parents that mass IQ testing has been dropped, although some students are tested individually by the district's psychologist.

The State requires all students to take a language arts test in the twelfth grade. Taylor said the results of this test can be misleading, because students have figured out that it means nothing to them personally, so many bright students decide to stay home the day the test is given, and others deliberately answer at random without regard for the questions asked.

Asked why the school newspaper comes out so irregularly, Taylor said there seem to be fewer students "with axes to grind, and also good writing is hard to come by." Another problem, he said, is the time necessary for the high school print shop to complete production on the paper.

In response to other questions, Taylor said that lay readers are not used in English classes because teachers prefer to grade papers themselves, that speech is not being given as a separate course this year because of lack of student interest, that penmanship problems should be dealt with in the elementary grades, and that homework is definitely required in all academic courses.

In his prepared remarks, Taylor said he feels Carmel High School is not suffering from some of the turmoil found in other schools because students are kept busy with a broad spectrum of club and athletic activities "and they go home tired. Then they have homework to do, and by that time they're ready for bed."

TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

I was very pleased to read in the Outlook of October 7 that Mr. Di Stefano is organizing a committee to petition for a bike route along the county road. For a long time those of us interested in horse-back riding have been distressed that in order to get from one village road to another children have to ride along the highway where the hazards are increasing from year to year as the traffic gets heavier and heavier. We are miraculously lucky that no horse has shied into the path of a huge delivery truck or that a speeding sports car hasn't lost control and smashed into a rider.

Furthermore, we have all noticed with distress the children who walk along the road en route to their various activities only inches away from dangerous traffic, to say nothing of the visitors to the valley who set out for a pleasant stroll only to sprain an ankle on the uneven surfaces of the roadside. After all, where else is there to walk?

I hope that all members of the community interested in the safety and pleasure of walkers, bicyclers and horseback riders will join Mr. Di Stefano in his campaign.

Sincerely,
JANE H. GALANTE
Laurel Drive

Mr. Willard Branson
Supervisor 5th District
1200 Aguajito Road
Monterey, California

Dear Mr. Branson:

Unfortunately the CVPOA Board has not discussed the proposed bicycle and equestrian trail along the Carmel Valley Road and will not be able to do so prior to consideration at the Board of Supervisors. I cannot, therefore, speak formally for the CVPOA but state my personal opinions which I believe would be supported by our Board.

The proposed paved trail would:

1. Be compatible with the character of the Valley which so many of us hope to retain,

2. Promote the safety of cyclists, equestrians, pedestrians and automobile passengers on the road, and 3. Be a great convenience to residents of the Valley, both young and old, who currently use the edge of the road or the shoulders for walking or riding bicycles or horses.

I urge that you strongly support the efforts to provide this most beneficial service for the people of Carmel Valley.

Very truly yours,
EDWIN B. LEE
President, CVPOA

cc-Carmel Valley Outlook

Dear Editor:

John Frykman, Carmel Unified School District Community Counselor, has written a book called, "A New Connection". This book is to be distributed this month. 3000 booklets called "Basic Drug Facts", which contains excerpts from "Basic Drug Facts"; are now being distributed free to the public by the Carmel Unified School District. At the September 23, 1970 School Board meeting, Dr. Harris Taylor recommended approval of warrant No. 2789 for these booklets, and the Board voted to authorize payment.

It is my belief, as well as the belief of many knowledgable people involved with the current drug craze, that these publications are controversial, contain half-truths, selected truths, and biased opinions.

Dr. Hardin Jones, University of California, Berkeley, Doctor of Medical Physics, Physiology, and Assistant Director of the Donner Labratories, has stated "Propaganda for drug use abounds". It is Dr. Jones belief, having seen the drug cult begin at Berkeley in 1964, that the greatest threats to solving the problem are the "Propagandists" promoting the use of drugs.

On October 1, 1970, I called Dr. Jones at Berkeley and read the following out of Mr. Frykman's booklet: "Marijuana is a relatively innocuous pharmalogical substance (less dangerous than alcohol or tranquilizers). By far the greatest danger of marijuana use is the possible encounter with law enforcement, a danger which is also present with the other drugs we have discussed."

Dr. Jones' immediate reply to these two sentences was as follows: "This is propaganda". In Reverend Frykman's book, he writes the following on page 31: "Marijuana is a relatively innocous pharmalogical substance (less dangerous than aspirin or sugar)." I believe this sort of conflict of statements, contradiction of known medical and research knowledge can and is doing much harm towards the solution of the drug problem, to say the least.

In my humble opinion, the most dangerous thing Mr. Frykman did at his recent series of talks at Brey Hall, was to create in the minds of people, through the use of psychology and mass group dynamics, an attitude of acceptance of the life styles of the drug users and acceptance of drug cults as a way of "normal" everyday life.

The people deserve the truth, and John Frykman has simply not told it like it is. The youth deserve the truth so they are able to make a moral decision, that is simply, have the real facts, so they may choose between right and wrong, and knowing what the truth is, bear the consequences of their free choice.

Sincerely and Concerned,

Hawkins Outlines Efforts To Raise Classroom Morale

Dr. Richard Hawkins, director of pupil personnel services for the Carmel school district, last week outlined three broad goals he has projected for the coming year.

In a report to the Carmel school board, Dr. Hawkins said he will concentrate on improving communication at all levels, improving the emotional climate in classrooms and bridging the traditional gap between psychological concerns and the program of instruction.

On the communication front, Dr. Hawkins said he hopes to involve teaching staffs in weekend workshops and find ways to make regular parent-teacher conferences more productive.

"We are also looking at the emotional climate in the classrooms, and the morale of teachers and students."

Where possible, he said, students will be given some responsibility for what and how they learn. He suggested that a good example of this was the investigation of environmental issues by the humanities class at the high school.

"There is a lot of work to be done" to improve staff morale, he added. "There are some real rough spots in particular school staffs where people have grown apart."

In helping children with learning or any other kind of problem, Dr. Hawkins explained he will look at the "total system" involved, working with parents, teachers, the classroom environment and the academic materials.

"The child is not the problem. The problem is the situation isn't working properly", he said.

He said that this approach puts some additional demands on teachers that they have not been used to, but that teachers generally seem to like it.

Dr. Hawkins said he will concentrate his efforts on the elementary school level, where the need is greatest. However, he will still be available to work with counselors at Middle School and Carmel High School by request.

SPEECH PROGRAM

In a separate report to the board, Mrs. Barbara Weingarten, the district's speech therapist, said that she has identified 156 elementary school children with speech problems out of 1,026 who were tested this fall.

Out of the 156, she said 58 are possibly self-correcting. These problems may be due to missing front teeth, braces or lack of full speech development.

Mrs. Weingarten is presently working with 45 children, usually in groups of two or three at a time. She visits most schools twice a week.

"I feel strongly about not spreading myself too thin," she said, "so this means we have a long waiting list."

She said that a minor speech problem, such as a lisp, can sometimes be worked out in a period of two months. She noted that in 1960, the last year for which figures are available, only between 33 and 40 per cent of the children enrolled in special speech classes resolved their problems and were dismissed during the course of the school year.

Supervisors Consider Report Next Week...

Will Paved Shoulders Give Valley Cyclists a Lift?

BY PAT GRIFFITH

Loren E. Smith, chairman of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors, offered some encouragement last week to bicycling enthusiasts who are trying to get both shoulders of Carmel Valley Road paved from Highway 1 to the Village.

In a letter to Lewis DiStefano, a math teacher at Carmel High School who is spearheading the effort, Smith said "we are very happy to see the interest shown by this group of young people."

Smith said that the Recreational Trails Coordinating Committee for Monterey County, formed in August, 1969, has discussed the possibility of getting bicycle routes along Carmel Valley Road and Highway 68.

In a report to the County Planning Department two months ago, the Recreational Trails Coordinating Committee recommended that the Board of Supervisors give priority consideration to providing marked, four-foot wide bicycling strips along both roads.

As a second "top priority" item it recommended establishing riding and hiking trails between Jacks Peak and the Laureles Grade, including a connection with the county-owned parcel of land in Roach Canyon by Del Mesa Carmel.

The board of supervisors will receive a report from the road department on paved bicycle lanes at its meeting of Tuesday, Oct. 27. DiStefano and students from the high school will present petitions and emphasize the need for paved shoulders at that time.

School board supports Valley cycle paths

The Carmel Unified School District board of education has added its endorsement to an effort by local cyclists to get paved shoulders along both sides of Carmel Valley Road.

The board voted to notify Supervisor Willard T. Branson of its support for a bicycle right-of-way extending from Highway 1 to the Village after hearing a presentation by high school teacher Lewis DiStefano and several members of the Carmel High School bike club.

"Our ultimate aim is to work on other roadways, and we hope that any time a new road is put in , there will be a plan for a bicycle right of way," DiStefano said.

DiStefano is chairman of a local committee which is petitioning the County Board of Supervisors and the County Road Department to pave four-foot shoulders for the added safety of both cyclists and motorists.

The matter will come up at next Tuesday's meeting of the Board of Supervisors, at which time the road department is expected to present a feasability report on the subject.

PROPOSED RECREATIONAL TRAILS in Monterey County are marked on this map prepared by the Recreational Trails Coordinating Committee last summer. Proposed bicycling trails are marked by the dotted lines along Carmel Valley Road and the Monterey-Salinas Highway. The solid lines are proposed riding and hiking trails.

Medical Emergencies

The first aid crew at the Carmel Valley Fire Department answered several emergency calls last week. Wednesday afternoon Robert Ewing of 5 Poppy Road was taken to Community Hospital as a medical emergency. At 5:38 p.m. Thursday Gregory Wilson of 80 Laurel Drive was given emergency treatment at his home and taken to a local doctor.

Saturday afternoon the first aid crew was called to the top of Country Club Drive, where an attorney visiting from San Diego, John H. Thompson, was apparently stricken with a massive cerebral hemorrhage or heart attack. A doctor at the scene said he died before the ambulance arrived.

And on Monday, at 8:25 a.m., Ernest Hergenhan of 2 Holman Road was taken to Monterey Hospital as a medical emergency.

The fire department also responded to one minor fire last week. That came on Sunday, when the pool heater at the Pinkham home at 33 Via Contenta malfunctioned and melted some of the wiring. The firemen disconnected the heater, and there was no property damage.

UNDER THE OAKS & AMONG THE CACTI

By Mildred Hattan

MRS. NORMAN BUNDGARD fulfilled her contribution to the Carmel Valley Women's Club Pyramid Project by electing to share her friendship of some twenty years with Mrs. Burt Talcott with some of her Valley friends. It was a delightful afternoon at the hostess's home on Live Oak Lane with Lee sharing her impressions and experiences of a congressman's wife in Washington D.C. In her woman to woman talk, Lee revealed her dedication to the pledge she had made upon her husband's election that she would not give up two of the things which had been such an important part of her life in Salinas ... the role of Red Cross Grey Lady, which she continues at a home for incurables (and admits that though it can be depressing to some it is not to her and she refers to her time spent there on duty as "her leveler.") The second is work with the American Field Service Exchange Program which she served locally, then regionally from Salinas, and is now a member of the national board of AFS.

She and Burt have always been strong supporters of youth programs and through their efforts eighteen Junior and Senior high school students from the twelveth Congressional District were able to tour Washington D.C. last year. It all began when they saw busloads of seniors from neighboring states arriving each May to see the Capitol. They shared the excitement of their tours but thought how great it would be for young people three thousand miles away to also be able to make the memorable journey. A plan for what is hoped will become an annual event was born. The trip took eight days and $405.00 which covered the cost of travel, hotel, and meals. They hope that in some way local organizations will become interested in sponsoring one or more young adults chosen which would also give those without funds an opportunity for this tremendous experience. Guests particularly enjoyed Lee's amusing version of the invitation received by her son and daughter-in-law to the Grand Ball given by Julie and David Eisenhower and Tricia Nixon honoring Princess Anne and Prince Charles during their visit from England. The Talcott's son, Ron is an air force officer, and his wife is the former Gigi Green of Monterey.

Lee is of course affiliated with the Congressional Club whose membership is made up of wives and daughters of Senators, Representatives, and ex-members of Congress. Incorporated by an act of Congress in 1908, the Club provides a home away from home during their stay in the capitol and activities which include programs, luncheons, and classes. Lee had served as chairman of the Eighth Edition Congressional Club Cook Book and just happened to have with her a copy (hot off the press!) of the book which contains a collection of delectable recipes contributed by the wives of each of the leaders of our nation.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE EIGHTH EDITION of the Congressional Club Recipe Book are pointed out by Mrs. Burt Talcott (center) who was chairman of the volume to some of the guests attending the Carmel Valley Women's Club Pyramid Project Coffee held at the home of Mrs. Norman Bundgard. Mrs. Talcott enjoyed a rare reunion with, left, Mrs. Mark Fields and right, Mrs. Norman Bundgard. The threesome's friendship dates back twenty years when their children were small and they worked together in numerous civic activities in Salinas. Mrs. W.G.B. Hatch (far right) was one of the guests invited to hear Lee's description of life in Washington D.C. Photo by George T.C. Smith

HOLIDAY BOUTIQUE AND LUNCHEON

The Carmel Valley Community Chapel Guild announces that November 14 has been set as the date for their annual bazaar to be called this year, "The Holiday Boutique and Luncheon." No general chairman will guide this year's benefit but instead ladies who have contributed so many hours of volunteer time will head each of the departments with which they have been most closely associated. Mrs. Elbert Wade will have her Home and Christmas Tree Decorations Booth; Mrs. Thomas McKiernon has had her committee busily sewing each Monday afternoon for her Handwork Booth; and Mrs. Howard Vail has been combing the area for tempting and unusual items for her White Elephant Booth. Mrs. Don Waylett assisted by Mrs. William Wood and Mrs. Leon Amyx are planning the luncheon. Donations are $2.00 per person and Mrs. Vera Stokes is in charge of the tickets. They may also be purchased through Mrs. Roy Kaminske at Irene Baldwin's Real Estate office. Remember to make a note on your calendar which reads, "Begin gift and holiday decor shopping between 11 and 5 on November 14 at the Holiday Boutique. Invite friends to meet me there at Fellowship Hall on Village Drive for luncheon."

FLAG FOOTBALL

The eight Flag Football Teams co-sponsored by the Tularcitos Elementary and the C.V. Community Center take a breather Saturday, the 24th, which is the date scheduled for the Center's trip to Marine World. The players seemed to work harder as though to compensate for their week away from tournament play according to the notes kept by Coach Herb Reuter who was there last chilly Saturday a.m. when the frost was on the pumpkin, the football, and just a few of the players!

Commenting on the Pumas-24 win over the Wolves-2, Reuter said: "On the opening play from scrimmage Kevin Washington of the Pumas intercepted a Brian Hanel pass and went all the way for the score. Two plays later Washington again intercepted a Hanel pass and raced for the second tally of the game.

"Early in the second half the iron defense of the Wolves pushed the Pumas back and Brent Buche through Matt Nottenkamper for a safety. Tony Scardina toward the end of the first half in the Roadrunner-Grass Hog game broke through the middle of the Hogs defensive line and went 15 yards for pay dirt.

"Opening the second half Chris Alexander of the Hogs put 6 on the score board by following the offensive blocking of Clay Neill, Carl Bresk, and Rogan Hattan.

"The Roadrunners came up with two more tallies making the final score 18-6. Jets 0 - Raiders 24! On a long pass from Jeff Johnson to Dario Crippen, the Raiders opened the scoring. Three plays later, Mark Nottenkamper intercepted a Rammel pass and raced 24 yards for the second tally. The half closed with the Raiders ahead by 12. Scoring attempts by the Jets were repeatedly thwarted by the defensive play of Matt Nottenkamper.

"The Rams opened the scoring of their game with the Snoopy Specials by a sustained running game by Chris Alexander and Peter Deodes. Alexander copped a 50 yard scoring drive by sweeping the left end for the tally. Jeff Mink was outstanding in leading the blocking for the offensive thrusts.

"Late in the second half the Jody Moore-Andy Lockwood passing attack jelled and the Snoopys evened the score. Final in that game was a 6-6 tie."

Among the unusual items will be Whirlpool washing machine, refrigerator, desk, dinette set, jungle gym, lawnmower and other garden equipment, a tricycle, new lighting fixtures, and a special feature, an imported Nordmende hi-fi radio-phonograph console.

MORE OAKS & CACTI

IT WAS ANOTHER WEEK of many strange sightings along the Carmel Valley Road. If the colorful harvest arrays at Martin's Fruit Stand and "Punkin Baron" Wolter's Market weren't enough to herald the coming of the holidays there were the tourists ... a glimpse of an enormous jack-o-lantern centering the dinette table in the back of a camper ... a pint sized guest at a Village motel walking daily between her quarters and the post office in a fearsome spider costume ... an attractive couple taking a hiking tour of the Village with their infant on the father's back in a carrier from which dangled a plastic pumpkin with a rakish grin ... A Del Monte be-fringed cable car hurtling down the road with MAL TAVARES at the wheel (we hear that his wife did not understand that he had been chauffering members of the press at the Laguna Seca Races and begged him to return it before the lodge realized it was missing!) ... The Dick Kings causing friends who assumed they were in Singapore to veer into the ditch when they met them on the Valley Road (Dick at last completed his assignment with the Army in Philadelphia, the family reunited on the West Coast last week and flew out of Monterey bound for Singapore on Monday) ... a Hippie twirling a huge umbrella bright with psychedellic patterns ... Clint Eastwood and movie company "shooting" at Carmel Rancho Shopping Center ..... three Hippies holding signs which read "The" - "Incredible" - "Journey" ... (it was difficult to determine which one was the siamese, which the pit bull, and which the labrador retriever!) ... and a timely bumper strip depicting a witch on a broomstick saying, "Brooms don't cause pollution!"

"SURE-SHOT-SHERIFF" Jack Davenport scored "again," only this time with a golf club at the Pajaro Golf and Country Club. THE KIWANIS CLUB of Carmel Valley welcomed many guests at their luncheon meeting Tuesday at the Los Laureles Lodge including Terry Moas, W.J. Kutrip, T. Harrington, Rich Pfitzer, Ralph Arontt, William F. Russell, George Toole, E.W. Holmstrom, Bill Bremer, Bob Brewer, and Bob Walls. With the membership, the visitors enjoyed a discussion and film of the Doolittle Raid over Tokyo by General E.W. Holmstrom who was one of the flyers on the famed attack. Said Gen. Holmstrom, "The first month of war found the defensive structure of the allied nations crumbling along every front. In the Pacific, one Japanese victory followed another with alarming rapidity. U.S. forces in the Philippines had retreated into the Bataan Peninsula. The British Army having surrendered the base at Penang was retreating southward and the Japanese were able to continue their advance upon Singapore at almost a marching pace with only token resistance. The rapid pace of Japanese successes was not offset by any showing of allied power. That first raid against Japan was successful is now accepted fact. The result of this carefully planned blow against Japanese morale at the critical period in our history was invaluable."

MRS. WILLIAM BRODRICK and Mrs. Gordon Harlander combined efforts to make their Pyramid Party benefiting the Carmel Valley Woman's Club an unusual exciting experience. Guests were invited to meet at the Brodrick home on Valle Vista to form a car caravan to drive to the Schilling Plant in Salinas, where the husbands of both Anna and Rosemary are employed. Following a guided tour of the facilities they returned to the Valley for a luncheon at the Harlander home on Live Oak Lane. Attending were: Mmes. Richard Dick, Don Middleton, Christopher Spaulding, David Allard, Robert Slangerup, Robert Oross, James Stewart, Rex Pryer, Tom McKixtry, Dale Buche, D.L. Knight and Gigi Porter.

ONE OF THE FIRST FALL PARTIES to utilize a Halloween theme was the one marking the twelfth birthday of Dennis Tavares, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mal Tavares of El Caminito. Highlight of the affair were BIRTHDAY CAKES (THREE to be exact ... two baked by Josie Diaz and one by Janny Stusek) which were enjoyed by the guests with quantities of punch and ice cream. An illness in the family had called the celebrant's mother to Tulare, so filling in for her were Mrs. Dean Diaz, Jr. and Mrs. George Glendenning, who organized shuffle board and other games for the party goers. Attending were Ricka Farrell, Renee Diaz, Kelly Glendenning, Cory Willingham, Duane Marzi, Peggy Draper, Karen Knight, Melody Mancebo, Danny Farrell, Tommy Bordonaro, Mike Colburn, Janny Stusek, and Robert Diaz.

A NICE TRADITION DOWN AT CARMELO is an annual fall get-to-gether sponsored by the Parents Club to renew old acquaintances and to welcome to the Community new families who have arrived during the summer. Last week more than three hundred attended the Family Night which also was an initial fund raising project to send Carmelo students to San Francisco on the famed Del Monte in the Spring. Mrs. Alex Hale, Parents Club president and her hard working executive committee including Dr. and Mrs. Glen Meyers, Mrs. Dale Vandervort planned a barbecue with tortillas, hot dogs, and beans; a White Elephant Sale and Pony Rides. Providing additional entertainment were the Sleepy Hollow riders with their horseback drill team and flag football teams competing from Tularcitos and Carmelo. "An Old Oak Leaf Cluster" to the Mid Valley Merchants who contributed merchandise for door prizes awarded during the evening. Among them were: a needle point bag from "The Golden Fleece", candles, candle sticks and matches from the Tiki Shop, an inflatable toy from Cypress pools, free order of cleaning from Tierra Grande Cleaners, a potted plant from Safeway, a flashlight from Bill Hitchcock's Ski Shop, riding lessons from Sleepy Hollow Stables, and a wig from Adinas Hair Fashions.

CHIEF PETTY OFFICER Robert Hebert who has completed three tours of Vietnam duty was the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Carmel Valley Lions Club. "Operation Helping Hand" was the title of the Navy veteran's talk. Wounded in action three times, Hebert, now enrolled at the Defense Language Institute, returns to Vietnam in December. He was born in China and has spent a great deal of his life in the Orient. Other guests presented to the membership by Bill Dick were Chief Petty Officer Charles Depew, president of the Fleet Reserve Association Branch 178, and Marine Master Sergeant Robert Sweeney who serves as their program chairman. Other guests were Tom Boyd, Gus McCarthy, and Jack Giles of the Carmel Mission 200 Club.

"College Night" Scheduled Oct. 27 at High School

College Night is being held on Tuesday, October 27, at 7:45 p.m. at Brey Hall at Carmel High School. This event is sponsored by the Padre Parents in conjunction with the Counseling Department of the High School to give the opportunity to all interested students and parents to obtain answers to the many questions they have about colleges and universities.

Representatives from four different kinds of institutions of higher learning will be speaking: CALIFORNIA STATE COLLEGES will be represented by Dr. Charles Risby, Assistant to Dean, California State College, Hayward; JUNIOR COLLEGES, by Dr. Jack Bessire, Dean of Student Personnel, Monterey Peninsula College; PRIVATE COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES, by Mr. William Wheaton, Dean of Admissions, Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies, formerly Director of Admissions, Pomona College; UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, by Dr. Gordon Brown, Assistant Director, Office of Relations with Schools, University of California at Santa Cruz.

Each representative will give a brief general view of his type of institution; then, after a coffee break, each representative will go to a separate room for thirty minutes to give more detailed information and answer more specific questions. This procedure will be repeated a second thirty minutes so that everyone can visit with at least two college representatives.

This evening is particularly planned for students of junior and senior level, but ALL STUDENTS AND PARENTS ARE INVITED!

Scouts Earn More Badges

Several members of Boy Scout Troop No. 127 were awarded badges at a special court of honor held recently at the Carmel Valley Community Center.

Troop officer awards went to Peter Grover, senior patrol leader; Steve Savaldi, assistant patrol leader; Ron Nielsen, scribe, and Dan Curran, instructor.

Honored for advancement in the Scouting ranks were David Wong, tenderfoot; Rick and David Hentges, both second class; and David Morris, star.

Peter Grover won merit badges in electricity and electronics, while Bruce Eldridge received a merit badge for life saving.

The troop meets Mondays at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Center. Dr. David Morris is the Scoutmaster.

Cypress Swimmers place high in San Mateo Stunt Meet

Three Carmel Valley girls paced their teammates from the Cypress Swim Club in an age group stunt meet held last Saturday at San Mateo. The AAU meet sponsored by the San Mateo City Recreation Department drew 135 entries from Northern California synchronized swimming clubs.

Winning third-place in the 11-12 age group was Gerri Brandly (photo on last week's Outlook cover). Kathryn Blevens won a fourth place ribbon, and Debbie Jameson won the fifth place ribbon.

Other Cypress placings were as follows: 10-and-under: Stacy Larsen, 11th; 11-12: Julie Wright, 18th; Julie Lipman, 22nd; Renayda Wolfe, 27th; and Laurette Courreault, 32nd; 13-14: Suzanne Calley, 23rd; and Loria Shaw, 29th; 15-17: Vicki Shaw, 8th.

Next and final competition for this year will be October 31, at the Santa Clara International Swim Center, hosted by the California Coralettes.

Thumbs Up or Down?

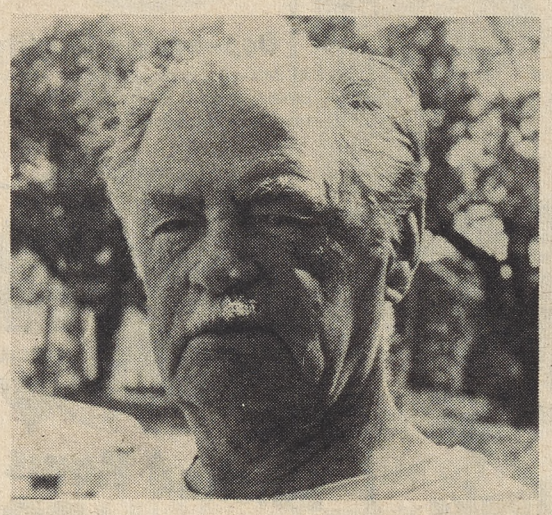
Valley Opinion Divided on Hitch-hiking Ordinance

Supervisor Willard T. Branson recently proposed an ordinance that would ban hitch-hiking in Monterey County.

Specifically aimed at the displaced persons wandering up and down Highway 1, the measure would make it equally unlawful for a person to hitch-hike or for a motorist to stop and pick up a would-be passenger.

Petitions have been widely circulated on the Monterey Peninsula in support of this ordinance. In a random poll taken at the Carmel Valley Post Office last week the Outlook received these responses to the question:

Do you favor an ordinance that would make hitch-hiking illegal in Monterey County?



"No, I don't favor it. If I choose to pick up somebody to give them a ride, that's my privilege. I don't care for the hippies, but I want to have the option to pick up someone if I want to." -- Col. Anders Larsen, Robles del Rio

"I'm not for hitch-hiking. Never. I think it's dangerous. I would never pick up anyone. There may be some who deserve a ride, but you never know." -- Mrs. S. Gordon Brown, 32 Hitchcock Canyon

"Yes, I think I do (support the ordinance). I think hitch-hiking is extremely dangerous, for one thing. -- Mrs. Dorothy Chappel, Story Road

"No, I'm not for the ordinance. As a youngster I hitch-hiked to and from junior college to get an education, and I sympathize with those who are hitch hiking today." -- William Russell, Chaparrel Road

"I'm for the ban. I think it's very important. The way things are now, they have no control over what these kids are taking. I had to hitch-hike when I played football as a kid, and the only other people hitch-hiking were kids. Today it's not that way at all. There are some of these strange people around here. You have to do it for the protection of all." -- Erasimo Belleci, Paso Hondo

"The ordinance is clearly unconstitutional to begin with. It's the most preposterous law ever presented here. It reveals one of the basic weaknesses of our social set-up, namely the lack of public transportation. Maybe we should sell all hitch-hikers used cars for $3 and turn them loose on the roads ... Any county officer or state officer who would seriously propose this ordinance is either a callous opportunist or another idiot." -- Don Minor, Holman Road

"I really haven't thought about it. I think they shouldn't have hitch-hiking. A person who picks up someone is responsible for that person if there is an accident. Secondly, there's a chance of the hitch-hiker getting hit. I think perhaps there should be free bus service for hitch-hikers in this immediate area." -- Pam Rasmussen, Los Tulares

"No, I'm not for the ordinance. I don't pick up hitch-hikers unless they're kids I know. I think if people are discriminating, they can eliminate a good share of it themselves. I hate to see kids out here in the Valley who have no other means of transportation." -- Ginni Drew Murphy, Salsipuedes Road

"That's something I really haven't thought about. There are a lot of people who have no other way to get about, and they can't afford a car. On the other hand, they do crowd the highways. It's a puzzling question. It's not easy to figure out." -- Ginnie Bosso, Esquiline Road.

, Story

"Yes, I do favor the ordinance. I don't think it should be legal to hitch-hike. There's danger in it. Most people who do hitch-hike just pass on drugs, in my opinion." -- Joanne Ball, Esquiline Road

"My own boy hitch-hikes to school, so for that reason I hate to see the ban. Still the dangers far outweigh the good things about hitch-hiking, so I would favor the ordinance, because the preponderance of evil is greater than the good. The good are suffering for the overwhelming bad of today. What you really have to do is get at the source of the bad. -- L.A. Holine, Dorris Drive

"I don't think I'm in favor of the ordinance. It looks to me as though it's curtailing the right of both the driver and the hiker. I think it's aimed primarily at hippies. I'm no great admirer of hippies, but I've got nothing against them. The only danger I see to hitch-hiking is young girls getting picked up, because so many have been murdered and molested. That is my only concern about hitch-hiking. But we've got too many damn laws now, and we don't need another one." -- H.K Vail, E. Garzas Road.

John Frykman concluded his four-part series on youth and drugs last week with an eloquent plea to solve the problem where it begins -- in our relationships with one another.

Speaking to another full house at Brey Hall, the Carmel school district's community counselor challenged his audience to think about what it means to be a human being, and to have real relationships with other human beings.

"Do we try to build authentic relationships, so someone feels he can risk some of his own personal security to open up to another?" he asked.

"To be secure is to get rid of false images. How do you begin? You begin by solving problems together, whether one to one, or within a family or community or school or nation.

"There's no magic band-aid you can apply...

"You know," the ordained Lutheran minister added almost as an aside, "the root meaning of salvation is to become whole, to have life. We must recognize we are all part of a life support system."

Frykman started off with an observation he has made before -- that drugs aren't the main issue at all.

"Drugs are part of the underlying problem of the times. What we need is to understand where we are, and why we're there."

"What we have to understand is what I refer to as the quality of life in America, what's happening to us as a people and as individuals.

"We've got to realize that there's been a breakdown of trusting relationships between human beings, between members of families, communities, towns and cities—the whole country. We're living in a time characterized by anxiety, mobility and hypocrisy.

"We must learn to accept the fact that there is no 'dope fiend' type; all of us are potentially dope fiends given the right combination of circumstances...

"We're producing people who have very little self-esteem coupled with a high approval need. That is, they dislike themselves even as they are asking others to tell them they're OK. People are not at ease with themselves; they don't like what they are or the images they feel they have to project.

"We're developing a universal 'fix mentality,' sticking in a needle and solving a problem.

"Sticking a pacifier into a baby's mouth is the first fix. It means the mother doesn't have to respond to his real needs; she's temporarily solved the problem of what to do with him.

"Another example of the 'fix mentality' is the competition for grades in school. Grades are totally unrelated to the internal competition that's going on within a person. Grades become a value thing. You have value if you get an A; but you don't have as much value if you get a C. It shouldn't be bad to be average in a nation of people...

"The flowers and candy a husband brings his wife when he's late for dinner are a 'fix.' Giving our kids an allowance as a reward is another. We say, clean your room, do the dishes, do your homework and I'll reward you with this money.

"What we should be doing is giving our kids a sum just because they're part of the family. Then, you can add more money as an incentive. Say they have a right to earn more money; don't bribe them with it.

"Advertising is another 'fix' problem. We've all seen how it works. 'Take Compoz if you want to get a promotion at work;' smoke L & M to solve your marital problems—it's for the two of you; slip me the Sleep-Eze, baby...

"Notice how they always couple cigarette advertising with some healthy outdoorsy scene...like Salem and the country. It's as if they were selling health along with all that 'yucky' smoke...

"And we build up maximum pressure before we give the fix. There's usually a whole set of 'ifs' to get a new bicycle...'If you come straight home from school...if you do your homework...'

"The drug culture as we've been discussing it is only part of the American problem. The bigger part is our need for constant 'fixes.' How many couples who are having problems say, 'If we only had that house in the country everything would be all right...'

"So, when they finally get the house, things are better for a while...until they need another fix..."

Dr. Frykman's barrage struck his audience and they listened in attentive silence.

"We argue that drugs are illegal, but we don't want to face up to our own illegal actions. How many of you have tried to convince a bartender to pour just one more drink before closing time? Or smuggled liquor across the border, or refilled a prescription over and over without checking with the doctor to see if it's OK?

"How about truthfulness in income tax? How many of us 'evade' certain things...and think about the anxiety that creates!

"We're all drug users and drug abusers—and that includes the nicotine and alcohol users. We all share equally in the responsibility for the state we're in...

"And we're hypocritical. We ram old concepts down others' throats; we don't want to face up to the ongoingness of society—that what might have been true once is no longer so.

"So we preach about one wife and one family for life, yet two out of three marriages in California end in divorce...maybe more in this area.

"What is a kid supposed to think—that his mother's awful because she's divorced?

"And we preach honesty, but any kid can open a newspaper and see the headline scandals, the price-fixing, the lying and cheating.

"That hypocrisy has led to a new stance among youth today. They say they're not going to believe anything unless they've experienced it for themselves; and that's led to the new upsurgence in astrology and transcendental meditation and such. Kids don't really believe it, but they can say, 'It feels good and I can accept it for that.' "

Dr. Frykman's solutions are not new or startling or even difficult, except in their very fundamental simplicity.

"We must develop authentic relationships, where a person doesn't have anything to cover up, no need to play roles for different people, where we can all be ourselves in mutual participation.

"We've got to become participants with each other so we can develop meaningful life styles as whole, harmonious human beings. And to do that, we have to establish primary relationships, begin solving problems together. We must be willing to give up something to achieve a mutual solution.

"I call it a Life Support System. It means that a person is never an individual outside his interaction with others. To be well, a person has to feel he's in touch with himself and can make choices and reach decisions.

"We ought to start having family meetings in our homes, not only in crisis situations because Johnny was caught smoking a joint, but for everyday things—to discuss the family vacation, how to redecorate the house...

"Our increased mobility as a nation has also limited the number of people in a family. I grew up with uncles and aunts and brothers and sisters and cousins in addition to my parents. Today's kids have only two adults in their immediate families to pattern themselves after. We should bring in other adults so they can see that we're not all alike; that there are are options and choices.

"We have to realize that peace is not the absence of hostility but the restoration of the community which is a healing place. What I want to see are places where people want to heal each other, not hurt each other."

When Frykman finished speaking, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Oross of Carmel Valley began distributing copies of a speech by a University of California professor, Hardin Jones, dealing with contemporary drug problems. Oross said he felt Frykman had not put sufficient emphasis on the physical dangers of drugs, particularly marijuana, and that the "full truth" was not being told.

Along with the reprint of Jones' views, the Oross' passed out a true-false "questionnaire" on drugs. One statement on the questionnaire, prepared by Oross, implied that Frykman was a propagandist for drug use.

When Oross repeated his charges at last week's school board meeting, several board members rose to Frykman's defense and said the innuendos were unfounded and unfair.

Foreign language classes discontinued in 5th grade

The Carmel school board last week voted to end all formal foreign language instruction for fifth graders on the grounds that "if you're not going to do it properly, then don't do it at all."

The decision came on a 3-2 vote, with trustees James Miller and the Rev. James Brock dissenting.

The vote will have no affect on foreign language clubs in elementary schools, however. At River School, members of the Spanish club meet twice a week during their lunch hour for beginning conversational Spanish.

Superintendent of Schools Harris Taylor explained to the board that it is difficult to find elementary teachers who are also skilled in foreign languages. He said it would cost the district about $35,000 a year, including the cost of transportation and materials, to hire a French and Spanish specialist to teach all fifth grade classes on a rotating basis.

The problem of continuing foreign language instruction on an intermittent basis in elementary schools, he said, is that if a school offers only one language, then children are likely to continue with that same language at Middle School. And since Spanish seems to be the favored language at the elementary level, this could eventually lead to the phasing out of French or any other language instruction.

Trustees Brock and Miller expressed concern at ending the existing instruction, noting that some children have an aptitude for languages before they reach Middle School.

There has been no formal foreign language instruction at Tularcitos School this fall. Principal Tom Williams said that the school is considering forming a French club under the direction of Fred Pomeroy if enough children and their parents show interest in the idea.

Williams said the club might meet after school or possibly even during school hours, depending upon the number of children involved and their ages.

On other matters, the school board:

1. Accepted with gratitude the gift of a book, "The Shell -- Five Hundred Million Years of Inspired Design," which was given to the high school library by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bruggeman in memory of Greg Scott.

2. Approved requests for in-lieu-of-transportation reimbursements from Mrs. Marie Holden of San Carlos Ranch and Maurice Grimshaw of Robinson Canyon Road.

3. Hired Mrs. Martha Marchetti as a language arts teacher at Carmel Middle School. A graduate of Mount Saint Mary College in Hooksett, New Hampshire, Mrs. Marchetti taught reading, social studies and arithmetic in Newport, R.I. from 1966 to 1968.

Carmelo 4-H Club News

Because of the large enrollment this year we will be unable to hold this months meeting at St. Dunstan's as we had planned. All the meetings will be held at Tularcitos School on the fourth Thursday of the month. Because of Thanksgiving, the November meeting has been set for Friday, Nov. 20th.

On the agenda for this meeting will be plans for a Halloween party or picnic and our speaker will be Mr. Artellan who will show movies on fire fighting.

We need someone in the lower valley to lead a clothing project. We have six girls in that area who would like to learn to sew. Anyone interested please phone Mr. Wm. Ingram, 624-4831.

We also have a new project available this year called Dog Care and Training. It sounds like a very interesting project and I'm sure several of our members would like to take it if we can find a leader. Anyone interested in teaching a group of youngsters how to care for their dogs may also call Mr. Ingram or Mrs. Bob Wilson, 659-2685.

"THE COINS OF LIN FOO" is the title of a play about a small peasant boy whose money is stolen at a fair which was presented by third graders at Tularcitos School last week. The children made their own costumes and painted colorful and creative murals as background. In the cast were Gail Bash as narrator, Rosalind Tucker as the Widow Wing Soong, Scot Gibson as the peasant lad Lin Foo, Dan Bussinger as the wise Magistrate An Li, and Garth Hattan and Blair Cunningham as attendants. Portraying villagers were Susanne Renault, Laura Bennett, Elizabeth Berg, Ashley Swanson, Eric Hansen and Peter Kelly (who also played the role of thief). The play was directed by Mrs. Pat Rozell, who is a teacher's aide in the third grade. Jon Fogelmanis was property man and Angela Morrow was in charge of music direction.

BY MRS. B.C. FORRESTER

This is the time of the year when children frighten themselves with stories of witches sailing about on brooms, skeletons rising from the grave, dread orgres feeding upon little children lost in the forests and awful stories centering upon the horrors of being alone and open to attack of people and spirits which prey upon children. I am going to tell you of how these stories came to be and the soil in which they grew.

In the years between 813 A.D. when the great Charlemagne died, and about the year 1400 A.D. when the Valois succeeded to the throne of France, a devastating famine swept over most of France, indeed over most of Europe. There was little food raised, and the poor of the farmland as well as the cities suffered acutely. Of course the great landowners, and the princes of church and state did not go hungry but the people did. For 500 years starvation faced the working man wherever he strove for a living. The Court of France feasted daily. Some of the monasteries conducted Black markets in food and doled out a meagre charity to beggars at the kitchen door. Some who wanted more nutrition than contained in the bread mixed with earth and eaten greedily. They devised a mixture of ox blood with the poor flour, baked it on a flat stone until hard, cut it into round cakes, pierced a hole in the middle then strung the cakes on leather strings and hung them up. Thus treated the cakes were edible for years. They were not very nourishing and certainly not very palatable, but one could survive on them.

But the Europeans had been a meat eating people for generations. Forced to become vegetarians, without meat or cereals, they became beasts. Seeking and tearing down any animal. The next step was cannibalism. For three centuries there were men who ate human flesh! I quote from an old chronical, written by the monk Glaber: "On the highroads the strong seize the weak, tear them apart, roast them and eat them ... Bands of men attack whole families of montebanks or strolling musicians with their children. Killing them and selling their flesh in the nearest market. Many a child was lured away with perhaps a piece of fruit. And devoured. Innkeepers cut the throats of travellers who had begged a night's asylum."

No wonder parents and children were afraid, and that stories grew about giants and witches who lived in castles and always had enough to eat, but did not hesitate to feed on a tender morsel of child's flesh.

As centuries passed the famine lessened. Crops were harvested and kept in France, not exported. Finally housewives could have food delivered to them. Peddlers drew donkeys thru the streets loaded with meat, fish, vegetables and bread. The custom survives in many countries today. The peddler's familiar cry is heard, and if you don't mind flies you may look between cool, banana leaves and select almost any fish or meat. At least you could in Brazil until 1950.

But pity the poor in the first thousand years after Christ. Canning was a home process and quite as often unsuccessful as successful. There were few cattle raised for beef alone. Wild game belonged to the Lord of the Manor and beyond the poor man's reach. It was a crime to hunt, "poach" on another man's preserves. And "poaching" was punishable by most cruel penalties, loss of hand or eye. No wonder men became cannibals!

Then came the whale on the markets of Europe. A French writer says of Dr. Felix Bramont, who ate whale meat as late as 1892 in a Parisian restaurant: "I don't say whale meat is good or bad. But you need not eat it if you don't have to eat it. I will give you the usual way of cooking it. Take a lean piece of beef and boil it with water in which a stale mackerel has been washed, mix this broth with some sort of piquant sauce, and you will have a dish similar to the sone served me under the name of Escalope de baleine a la Valois."

(Editor's note: "I don't think he liked Whale meat. Don't use the recipe.")

But Europe was saved from cannibalism by plentiful Whale Meat in those awful days of lack, and only the memory of them survives in Halloween terror tales.

Sunrise to Sunset

As I drove from Monterey this morning, through the mist and fog shrouded trees, dim, lacy silhouettes suddenly were barraged with great, long, shafts of brilliant sun-light, confirming my constant belief, that ray of hope is always just o'er the next hill. So began my working day in Carmel; on this cheerful note and I shall pass this unto you.

Speaking of sunlight, weren't we most fortunate to welcome that ball of fire that burst forth from the morning greyness, to spread a pleasant and warm atmosphere for the Beethoven Festival? I'm sure everyone involved in this Bi-Centennial presentation of the Missa Solemnis, felt very gratified at the great outpouring of people for this beautiful performance. My eyes were constantly drawn to the old Mission Bell, and the time-worn, weathered walls of the Mission, and thought how fitting an environment for this most beautiful of all Masses.

While thoughts of Beethoven and his music are still on the heart and mind, for the Sunday afternoon concert, a special word; The Beyer String Trio, excelling as always, joined by two very fine guest artists, Ray Fabrizio, and Wade Parks, flutist and pianist, respectively. I would like to say just a special word of praise and humble thanks to Dr. Gordon and his wife and sister-in-law for they gave a beautiful performance, in spite of the death of his mother this very day. This is truly dedication to their profession. We are sorry for their loss.

While music is still the topic of the day, let me announce The Carmel Music Society will launch its first concert with Alicia De Larrocha, Spain's foremost pianist, gracing our stage tonight at 8:30 p.m. I was very privileged to hear several of her recordings at the home of our fine music critic, Dr. Greenberg, and I am eagerly looking forward to the concert.

Dr. Greenberg is a most amazing man, for his keen awareness and vast knowledge of all of the world's great performing artists leave one a bit speechless in his presence. I must say he has surely enriched my appreciation of the world's great music. The Record Collector's Hour was a great asset to our programming at Sunset. I am forever grateful that I, and my family have the privilege of continued exposure to these excellent performers, that through these portals pass.

Mr. Barati's Course continues to stimulate and inspire those students eager to learn more of the correlation of all of the Arts in association with music. Last week we met in the lobby of the Sunset Auditorium, surrounded by the fine watercolors of George Downs, enhancing and emphasizing this very correlation we are studying in these lecture series. Oct. 27 and Nov. 3, will be the two remaining lectures; won't you join us for a stimulating and informative evening?

"Explorama" played to a nearly full house both Friday and Saturday evenings, and we anticipate another full attendance in November when Dick Reddy will present "A Swedish Summer". The first showing is Thursday, Nov. 12 and Friday, Nov. 13 the second evening.

My closing good thought for the day, "It is good to tame the mind, which is often difficult to hold in and flighty, rushing wherever it listeth, a discplined mind brings happiness."

So long for now.

School Board Gets a Lesson on Ecology

The Carmel school board found out last week what happens when kids do their homework on ecology.

A pointed lesson in environmental awareness was presented by Doug McCall, student representative on the board, who passed along student suggestions that small cars be substituted for large American models in driver education classes and that no harmful insecticides be used on school property.

On the matter of automobiles, McCall said students feel it is unnecessary to use two standard-size American cars, one with automatic transmission and one with stick shift, for driver training. In their place he recommended four or six cylinder engine cars, either foreign or domestic, with a manual gear shift.

Not only would smaller cars be kinder to the atmosphere, he said, but they would be less expensive for the school district to operate.

"If you can drive a Honda or a VW with a stick shift, you can drive any kind of car," he said.

Obviously impressed by the simple logic of his arguments, the board asked for a report from the driver education department on the feasability of switching to smaller cars next year.

But McCall had more than cars on his agenda. He turned to the issue of fertilizers and insecticides used on the high school campus, and produced labels showing some insecticides used contain DDT.

"This is not necessary," he stated. "We are not growing plants to feed the multitudes of India. Perhaps something else can be used."

Humanities students, he said, had surveyed the entire school and found that grass cuttings were being discarded. McCall suggested that the school district pile all trimmings on a compost heap, instead, noting that "there can't be any better fertilizer. This could be the beginning of recycling for this campus."

Business Manager Walter E. Hinton said that the County Health Department has said the district is using the right chemicals for the job to be done.

"The difficult thing these days is finding something that is safe," Hinton explained. "We are using Endrin, which is as safe as anything else."

Trustee Hilton Bialek asked McCall and other interested students to prepare a report and recommend just what to use.

Valley pool very popular this summer

The Carmel Valley Community Pool reached a saturation point in use last summer, according to a report on the 1970 summer recreation program given to the Carmel school board last week by recreation director Charles L. Dawson.

Dawson said 520 students took swimming lessong during the summer, with some taking more than one class. There were 255 enrolled during the first four-week session and 265 the second session.

In addition, 73 students took diving lessons, 31 completed the life saving courses and 12 persons took senior life saving classes two nights a week.

Also appearing at the Valley pool were 125 pre-school children between the ages of 3 and 6, who met the height requirement of 36 inches to the chin line. Out of this group, 70 passed and were recommended for the beginning swimming class.

The report by Dawson also noted that 27 students between 7 and 16 years old participated in a water ballet class, and for next year it is recommended that two classes be offered instead of one.

And finally, 38 students participated on swimming and diving teams at the Valley pool.

"During the past years enrollment in swimming and diving lessons at the Valley pool has increased rapidly," Dawson stated. "It is our opinion that it has reached the saturation point this year, as far as numbers are concerned, and will level out. The high school pool experienced a spurt in enrollment this season, and its growth should show an equalizing trend with that of the Valley pool."

In recreational swimming, the Valley pool averaged 110 persons daily during the week and 78 on weekends. Overall, there were approximately 9,670 admissions at the pool to Sept. 1.

Lt. Col. James E. Cody retires from U.S. Army

Lieutenant Colonel James E. Cody of Carmel Valley was recently honored upon his retirement after serving more than 26 years in the U.S. Army.

Colonel Cody, 44, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cody of Wildersville, Tenn.

A graduate of Lexington High School, Lexington, Tenn., Colonel Cody has attended the University of Maryland, San Jose State College, Calif., and Monterey Peninsula College, Calif.

Colonel Cody entered the service from Tennessee, in 1944, and completed his basic training at Camp Wheeler, Ga.

In World War II, Colonel Cody saw action as a Platoon Sergeant and Master Sergeant with the 80th Infantry Division in the European Theator of Operations, and later was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army Reserve.

Postwar assignments included service in Korea, 1950-51, as a platoon leader and commander in the 7th Infantry Division; at Ft. Ord, Calif., 1959-61, 1962-65 and 1967-68, as Secretary of the General Staff and as Information Officer; in Vietnam in 1966 as Senior Advisor to the Commanding General, Republic of Korean Forces; and in Korea as Deputy Public Affairs Officer, United Nations Command. In the latter assignment he was responsible for local, national and international media covering the Military Armistice Commission proceedings at Panmunjom.

Prior to his assignment to the Presidio of San Francisco in October 1969, as Chief of the Recreation Branch, he served as deputy affairs officer for the United Nations Command in Korea.

Colonel Cody's awards and decorations include the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device for valor and the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster for meritorious service, the Meritorious Service Medal, the Joint Service Commendation Medal, two awards of the Purple Heart, the Unit Commendation citation, and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

Colonel Cody is a member of the Seaside Lions Club, the Monterey 20-40 Club and the Laguna Seca Raceway Committee.

He and his wife, the former Dorothy J. Groves, reside at 25716 Tierra Grande Drive in Carmel Valley.

VISION CARE

BY DR. R.E. MARLIN
(consulting optometrist)

What does it mean when you have 20-20 or 20-40 vision?

Dear Mr. R.A.

The term "20-20" refers to the size of letters which are readable 20 feet away. These letters are about ⅜ of an inch high. If the letters must be made larger in order to be readable the denominator becomes larger as 20-40, 20-100 and so. A person whose vision is 20-40 would require letters twice the size or would have to be at ½ the distance. 20-40 or better is the requirement for a driver's license.

Unfortunately, the presence of 20-20 vision does not guarantee that one has comfortable binocular vision. Some people have 20-20 vision and still need corrective eyewear. Only a professional eye examination can determine this.
